THE NATIONAL GOLF CLUB (OCEAN COURSE), VIC

Length 6263 meters

Par 72

Architects: Thomson, Wolveridge & Perrett

The Ocean Course, whilst located next to the Moonah Course, is a complete contrast to its neighbor. Many Thomson courses include links style pot bunkers placed strategically in the middle of fairways tempting the golfer to go for it (and be rewarded if successful) or lay up (and face a longer shot for your approach). The Ocean is no exception and many of the green surrounds also are framed by this style of bunker.

A number of green on the Ocean provide a testing putting challenge as they contain severe slopes which can easily lead to 3 putt (or worse). A good rule of thumb is better to be below the hole than above. A number of holes provide realistic birdie chances and in particular a few short par 4 holes offer the long hitter the chance to drive the green.
